Hello everybody! My name Anna, and I’m taking over the five oaks museum Instagram this week to show you guys how to paint bubbles with acrylic paint using just a handful of colors to get a beautiful bubble finish! I was born in Seattle, Washington and currently live in Tigard, OR. This week I’ll be sharing: a few of my original artworks that I’ve done for competitions, what inspires me to draw, how bubbles can become an art and form of entertainment, the ways my art has become a resource to others, and ending with a video on how to paint bubbles using acrylic paint!!!
May 12, 2020
These are some of my art pieces I did for the scholastic art competitions. I like to incorporate different media’s in my art work to provide some different textures and a more complex piece. I've been doing competitions since I was in 3rd or 4th grade. I've won awards from honorable mention to gold, which I'm proud of all my work and how much skill I've developed since I was in elementary school. As I grow older and my skills start to improve I will continue to create art pieces that will not only be pleasing to the eyes but ones that will create an atmosphere!
May 13, 2020
What inspired me to do art? While most people may be influenced by other artists, I find myself in a state of relationship where I am drawing to not please myself only but to bring a common interest among people. When people look at my art I get reactions of excitement, joy, a pleasant feeling. When I feel this I become more determined to continue drawing for others. In the photo is my friends and I in a mission trip in Cambodia. During this mission trip I got to do face painting for the kids using my artistic ability and I was able to make the kids satisfied and happy, which in the end makes me happy as well. I am also deeply influenced to do art, because of my religious belief, which I am Christian. I believe that the lord gave me this talent of art and creativity to be able to bring people together and unite them. In my church we have a merch and design team, and through that I am able to help make designs for my church members to wear and become connected with one another!!! I always thought my biggest supporters were my friends and families, but I am now realizing from you guys, that there is a whole world I can show my art too and it’s something I look forward to doing 😃

For the upcoming bubble painting project you will need: - acrylic paint of any colors (I will be using mainly white, blue, pink, orange, dark blue)- a black piece of paper- and a small- medium sized paintbrush
May 14 2020
Bubbles can be used as a visual art, or an entertainment tool. You can sometimes see Street performers using huge bubbles or do tricks with bubbles. In the end, an audience will always be in a state of fascination and awe. Which is why I chose to do bubbles as my project, it's to capture the beauty and colors of a bubble and put it into an art where we can be creative with it and we become the bubble performers and put beautiful uniquely painted bubbles onto paper! The next photo is a little sneak peek into what the final outcome may look like😊😊
May 15, 2020
What had my art influenced so far? Well in my previous post I said how I am in a design team in my church. In this photo all though blurry, I designed this shirt for the graduating classes of 2019!!! I've also helped design the 2019 summer retreat hoodies and shirts and as well as the church winter retreat hoodies. Of course I don't do these alone, I have my friends and partners in the group. I'm also currently trying to design my school spirit shirt, which will be in a vote by the school students. I've used my art in clothing and competition, but also in my daily life, you probably are too!! I think art is something that can be defined differently from person to person. But to me I think it means to create something, anything!! It doesn't have to be good or bad.
Someone in my life I've personally influenced is my younger sister. She told me that when she grows up, she wants to be an artist like me. Things like this push me to keep going and make even greater influences on people with my art and spread it to others and the world. My goal and career in life is left undecided yet. But if it's something I can help others with or influence others with, then I think that's a job well done to me, because I like to help others in my own way.
May 16, 2020
Painting bubbles-Anna Kim

When painting the bubbles you'll want to outline some circular shapes or free draw them!! That way you get a round bubble instead of a wobbly one. Use white as the base color so when you layer the other colors on top, they will stand out more in those areas. Start with the colors lightest to darkest. Try to leave the blackest parts of the bubble in the middle and paint in the same direction as the bubble shape to show the shape of the bubble. I used these colors but you can use whatever colors you have at home! If you don't have acrylic paints then you can also do the same with crayons and/or oil pastels. Add some finishing white touches to finish your bubble art piece. You can move freely with this project and make each bubble unique. Hope you enjoyed this project! And thank you for your lovely comments and feedback. I had fun with this week Instagram takeover and appreciate your time!!

Watch video here: https://www.instagram.com/tv/CAQumZohGfj/?utm_source=ig_web_copy_link